Serve - Yourself
Buying

Demonstrating the remarkable changes in buying habits is the growing shift toward serve-yourself retailing.

This has been developed, at least in part, from the picturesque and colorful packages in which so many products of food processors and others are put up for sale.

In an annual cartoon contest in San Francisco recently, an amazing amount of cartons of all kinds designed to do their own quick work, were shown.

There was a little session of remembrance the other day in which a group of old-timers were assembled. As is frequently the case when this class of men get together, conversation turned back to "the time when" you can learn
some unique incidents if you sit in
on conferences of this sort and will be impressed that there were
nations even in the long ago calculated to stir interest in life.

Another important trend is that toward increasing packaging of household necessities, such as blankets and notions. There were nearly three times as many entries
in this group as ever before. It is estimated that the total number of entries was 1,000.

This shift to serve-yourself retailing is moving so rapidly that
by 1960 one out of every three stores will use it to a major degree, reports the association. It is its advantages and disadvantages. Many farmers, for instance, realize that fancy tins in packaging as are thus developing tend to add to the cost of ordinary food products, with the producer getting little or no benefit from the price spread. Then all this adds to the cost of living, but we must face it, the trend is here.

and the U. S. Public Health Service, and under the general direction of Dr. R. D. Griffin, regional health officer, the Bulloch County Health Department has inaugurated a program to stamp out typhus fever and to get rid of rats.

There was a little session of remembrance the other day in
which a group of old-timers were assembled. As is frequently the case when this class of men get together, conversation turned back
to "the time when" you can learn
some unique incidents if you sit in
on conferences of this sort and
will be impressed that there were
nations even in the long ago calculated to stir interest in life.

Another important trend is that
toward increasing packaging of
household necessities, such as blankets and notions. There were nearly three times as many entries
in this group as ever before. It is estimated that the total number of entries was 1,000.

This shift to serve-yourself retailing is moving so rapidly that
by 1960 one out of every three
stores will use it to a major degree, reports the association. It
is its advantages and disadvantages. Many farmers, for in-

France Is Gaudy, Declares Mr. Jordan

(Editor's note: Dupree Jordan, editor of the West End Star of Atlanta is furnishing the Bulloch Times with a story of his experiences during his world travels. A leading Baptist, he was associate director of the Southern Baptist Radio and Television Com.)

In the rural areas, you see little evidence of the fact that the farms and fields you are passing have been a major battle ground in Europe for countless generations. Every farm is neat and trim; every inch of land is being used to greatest advantage.

This utilization of everything is nowhere more strikingly illustrated than along the Rhine Valley. Even the steep banks of the river and the rocky cliffs are cultivated.

The most impressive part of the Rhine, however, are the majestic old castles that line the sides of this winding giant. Taking a lazy cruise down the Rhine

BULLOCH TIMES Thursday, April 19, 1956 Eight

— which is as pleasant and beautiful a trip as any tourist will ever have anywhere — you see more rambling medieval castles than you would ever have dreamed possible. Most of them have an imposing vantage point overlooking the river.

The Rhine is not only picturesque and romantic, but is a major factor in Germany's expanding economy. It is constantly jammed with boats and barges of every kind; it is very much like our Mississippi or Ohio Rivers, but even more so.

Variety is a characteristic of this country, just as it is of several of its European neighbors. In some ways, Germany is more varied than any of the others; not so much in geography and terrain as in products, people and periods, reflected in architecture.

It is a nation still suffering from the war and the tremendous debt it left, but one that is definitely on the move and pointed toward prosperity.

In Herbert Luchty's recently published book, France Against Himself, he gives this characterization of that nation: "France can never be considered in isolation from the past... She lives in her own time, in the rhythm of her own history, which does not quite keep time with the clocks of the twentieth century."

The most emphatic impression visitor receives in France to-day is that the country is living in the past. Critics say this is because the nation has not been for future, but whatever the reason, most Frenchmen prefer to ignore the demands of the atomic age.

Many visitors leave France convinced that all her people are incredibly lazy, and immoral. Certainly this is not true; many Frenchmen are exceedingly energetic and ambitious, and the better families of France follow an almost pure code of morals. But there are many open evidences of laziness, indifference, and immorality.

The planner and gaiety of the nation, and Paris its capital, have faded considerably since the war. Many things long celebrated in story and song now seem tawdry and cheap.

The strength of France today is seen that all her people are diversified farms. Agriculture occupies fully 30 percent of all those employed in the nation. There is also an extensive fishing industry, and the country is rich in minerals of many kinds.

Without question, France is a beautiful nation, but its rural areas are more attractive, and much more wholesome, than its cities. Four important rivers — the Seine, Loire, Rhone and Garonne — supply 7,543 miles of inland waterways.

France is one of the largest nations of Europe. Her 43 million people are spread over an area of more than 212,000 square miles. The country is some 600 miles from North to South, and 500 miles from east to west. And because it is an integral part of the Mediterranean (3,367 square miles with a population of 267,971) should be added to this.

The once strong and far-reaching empire of France has been disintegrating rapidly in the past decade. At the end of the Second World War, her overseas possessions, mostly in Africa, but reaching around the world, included a total of 4,659,876 square miles and 79,846,214 people. These figures are shrinking steadily.

For fifteen years now the French have been living under trying circumstances. In June of 1940 their Third Republic was brought to an abrupt end, after a life of 70 years. Hitler dictated the destiny of the French for four years; liberation came in September of 1944. A new Constitution which set up the Fourth Republic was adopted on October 4, 1946, and on April 24, the Gene Madison Rodeo will be held at the Sylvania Community Center at 4 p.m. The annual hog show, dairy heifer show, pure-bred Hereford sale, and the Livestock Festival Parade and the Gene Madison Rodeo will be held again on Wednesday, April 25th. Thursday, April 26th, the cattle show and fat barrows and fat cattle auction sale will take place. The Sylvania County Livestock Association, Inc. are inviting Bulloch county to select one young lady, unmarried, to serve as a member of their Queen's Court. They stated the one selected from Bulloch county must be mounted and dressed in western attire and she will be expected to ride in the parade and serve as a member of the Queen's Honor Guard at the Coronation Ceremonies Wednesday night, April 25th. The Association further suggested she be sponsored by some local organization such as: County 4-H Club Group, Farm Bureau, Women's Club, etc. Each county will be limited to one representative. Accommodations will be furnished without charge to representative and room accommodations for the representative and her secretaries.

male figures, there is very little real entertainment.

Apart from Paris, most French cities are small, and relatively unimportant. Versailles, second largest, has only 636,264 residents. Lyons has 253,731; Nice 211,165 and Havre 165,000. Countless small villages make up the majority of the nation's population.

No one would deny that France is an interesting country, but she definitely "lives in her own time."

Sidewalk cafes are characteristic of Paris, and the French. No one hurries for anything (except when driving); most meals take on long around the production, included a total of 4,659,876 square miles and 79,846,214 people. These figures are shrinking steadily.

Question - Answer Booklet On S. S.

"How Does Social Security Affect Farm Families?", a question-and-answer booklet which gives brief easy-to-understand answers to questions farmers are asking about old-age and survivors insurance, has been issued by the Social Security Administration, directed by Charles A. Hamilton, District Manager of the Savannah Social Security office.

This booklet tells how long a person has to work to get retirement payments, explains the special provision in the law whereby farmers and other newly-covered workers can become insured quickly, and gives examples of benefits. A section of the booklet is devoted to self-employed farmers and explains the husband-wife, father-son, and share-farmer arrangements in relation to Social Security.

Any one can get a free copy of the booklet at the Social Security office, Room 220, Post Office Building.

PENSIONS FOR VETS SURVIVORS

Pete Wheeler, Director State Dept. Veterans Service Explains Law

The widow and children (but not the parents) of a deceased World War I veteran who died of causes not due to service, in most cases, are entitled to VA death pension benefits. For eligible next of kin to qualify, the veteran must have been discharged under conditions other than dishonorable after 90 days or more of service (or for disability incurred in service in line of duty in less than 90 days) or at time of death was receiving or entitled to receive compensation, pension, or retirement pay for service-connected disability.

Pete Wheeler, Director of the State Department's Veterans Service, said application should be made on VA Form 8-534. He also stated that a widow is disqualified when her annual income exceeds $1,400, or $2,700 if she has a child or children.

Wheeler said that a widow loses her entitlement upon remarriage and unmarried children usually become ineligible when they attain age 18. However, a child attending a VA approved school after age 18 will continue to receive the pension while attending such a school, but not beyond the age of 21 or if married.

Wheeler invited all eligible next-of-kin to contact the local office of the State Department of Veterans Service, which is located at Statesboro, Georgia, and the manager of the office is Benjamin B. Hodges.

Regional Managers Meet In Pittsburgh

Sales increases ranging from 10 to 40 per cent in their various regions during 1955 were forecast by regional sales managers of the Central of Georgia Railway Company's Delta Power Tool Division at a two-day meeting just concluded in Pittsburgh.

Predictions made by managers of Delta's Eastern, Southern, East Central, West Central, Western and Canadian sales regions covered by Delta Homecraft and industrial-type tools were based on:

1. Detailed reports on sales trends in each region.

2. Plans for introduction of new tools later in the year.

3. Plans for a full promotional campaign which will be tied in closely with dealer activities.

Executive plans for a meeting of the entire Delta American and Canadian sales force in Pittsburgh some time in June were also discussed at the meeting.

By the time a man thinks of consolidating his gains, he's a grandfather and instead of consolidation, distribution starts.

TRAINING BILL ENDS JULY 25

Deadline Applies To WW II Veterans, Not To Korean War Vets

World War II veterans training under the original G. I. Bill are reminded that July 25, 1956 marks the end of the program for all but a handful of them, according to Pete Wheeler, Director of the State Department of Veterans Service.

Wheeler said that even though a veteran may still have unused G. I. training entitlement at that time, or even though he may be in the middle of a course, his G. I. training payments will come to an end on July 25, 1956.

Wheeler stated also that a bill to permit over 88,000 W. W. II veterans now taking training, under the W. W. II G. I. Bill, to continue their studies for another two years past the upcoming deadline has been introduced in the United States Senate by Senator Payne, of Maine. Wheeler did not comment on the chances of this bill becoming law, however.

Wheeler pointed out that the 1956 deadline only applies to veterans of World War I and not to veterans of the Korean War.

All interested veterans who desire further information relative to any phase of the veterans training program are urged to contact the local office of the Department of Veterans Service, which is located at Statesboro, Georgia, and the Field Office Manager is Benjamin B. Hodges.

Industrial Arts Fair May 4-5

Approximately 200 projects made by industrial education students in the high schools of the first and eighth congressional districts are expected to be on display at the annual Industrial Arts fair at GTC May 4-5.

Dr. Donald Hackett, chairman of the G.T.C. Industrial Education division, says plans are now well underway for the annual two-day exposition. The fair is sponsored by the Georgia Industrial Arts Teachers Association with the cooperation of Associated Industries of Georgia. The fair here is a part of a statewide program of exhibits sponsored by the two organizations aimed at promoting interest in industrial arts. Associated Industries provides cash awards for the fair winners.

High School students, competing in three divisions, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth, and eleventh and twelfth, may enter projects in one or more of six different categories. These classifications include woodwork, metal-

Home Demonstration Clubs
Of Georgia Celebrating
Anniversary April 29-May 5

If it is true that life begins at 40, then Home Demonstration Clubs in Georgia are more youngsters with worlds ahead of them yet to conquer. Miss Eddy Ross, state home demonstration leader, Agricultural Extension Service, says:

The report shows that the Agricultural Extension Service in Georgia was inaugurated by the State College of Agriculture in 1908. The first extension work consisted of an educational train which made a tour of the state, visiting every county having a railroad. "This awakened such interest in agricultural education as to influence the next session of the Georgia state legislature to make the first appropriation for extension teaching amounting to $10,000. In 1911 the appropriation was increased to $40,000 enabling extension to include nine more phases of farm life, including home economics."

By 1916 there were 16 field specialists, 84 district and county agents, and 49 agents in home economics. The passage of the Smith-Lever act in 1914, making available federal funds to be matched by state funds, gave extension work a great impetus, the report says.

In the beginning it was thought best to carry on work only with gifts of early tomato canning clubs. According to the 1916 report, this was so successful that farm women everywhere began clamoring for help. The purpose of the early clubs was the same in theory as it is today, "building and introducing labor-saving devices and connected with farm homes."

"It is thought best to teach the construction and thorough use of one of these devices at a time," the report states. A campaign for building and using food canners resulted in more than 500 of them being put into use on farms. When warm weather came on, the work of building iceless refrigerators was taken up along with the methods of handling milk and butter.

Agents traveled some 94,000 miles in 1915—by rail and by auto. They visited 8,000 homes and conducted some 3,000 meetings with an attendance of around 85,000 members. Almost 15,000 bulletins were distributed and 13,000 letters were sent out.

"Although we are not as concerned with figures as in the good work accomplished for the rural family, a look at the 1965 annual report provides an accurate picture of the growth of home demonstration work," Miss Ross states.

Home demonstration agents made 234,713 visits; held 4,368 training meetings with an attendance of 68,595; 569,734 bulletins were distributed, and 20,672 adult result demonstrations were given.

"Selecting just a few figures from the annual report will show the scope of work accomplished through the Home Demonstration Clubs during 1965," Miss Ross says. More than 12,000 families remodeled or repaired their homes; 2,800 improved kitchens and 12,338 improved storage space. Home demonstration agents assisted 25,231 families with child development and guidance; 68,154 with clothing construction, and 41,337 with food preservation and storage.

"You are married and are employed in one of our department stores. Your husband has also served the public for many years. You have two children, a son and a daughter.

If the lady described above will call at the Times office, 35 Seaboard Street, she will be given two tickets to the picture showing today and tomorrow at the Georgia Theater.

After receiving her tickets, if the lady will call at the Statesboro Floral Shop she will be given a lovely orchid with the compliments of Bill Holloway, the proprietor. For a free hair styling call Christine's Beauty Shop for an appointment.

The lady described last week was Mrs. Linton Banks.

Program Committee Check-Up Meeting

The Bulloch county agricultural program committee will hold a check up meeting Friday night at 7 p.m. at the American Legion hall.

S. G. Chandler, district extension agent for North Georgia, will present to the group some of the ways to carry out a program after it is developed. Mr. Chandler is a specialist in this field of work, having carried on the activity with TVA for a long number of years and then later with the extension service.

Following a series of community meetings last fall, some 35 farm people, technical workers, and business leaders developed a county agricultural program. The program has been put in bulletin form and is available to everyone through the county agent's office. Getting these ideas to working will be a major item of business Friday evening. The Sea Island Bank will again be host to the group.

BOY SCOUTS CAMPPOREE

Ogeeches District
Event At Camp Boyce
Held Last Weekend

Eighty-five Boy Scouts of the Ogeeches District were in attendance at the Camporee held at Camp Boyce near Statesboro last weekend. This district includes Statesboro, Vidalia, Lyons, and Sylvania. The leaders reported it was the best attended camporee ever held at Camp Boyce.

Wayne Edwards of Statesboro was the camp director and was assisted by Lawrence Shuman, executive scout director, Dr. Bill Weaver of GTC, Reppard Deloach and Explorer Scouts of Troop 40 of Statesboro.

The troops in attendance were Troop 33 of Statesboro which was under the direction of leaders, L. A. Scruggs, Ed Giffrey, and Leon Johnson. Troop 39 of Lyons was represented by 27 boys, who were under the direction of J. A. McDermott, J. E. Wilkes and Fred Deane. Troop 40 of Statesboro had as its leaders, John Grover, Wayne Edwards and Phillip Howell. There were 58 boys from both of the Statesboro troops.

During the weekend camp out a very rigid program in inspection of all the patrol areas and equipment was carried out in addition to the several phases of scouting skills were held.

The Wolf Patrol of Troop 40 took first place by getting the most points in scouting skills and patrol inspection. Gary Witte is leader of the Wolf Patrol and is assisted by Rufus Hardy. Troop 40 won four first place ribbons and one second place. Troop 39 of Lyons took two first place ribbons, two second place, and one third place ribbon. The Eagle and Wolf Patrols of Troop 40 took top honors by inspection and the Bob White of Troop 40 placed first in the Gold Rush and scouting skills.

On April 7 the H. D. Council Alumni met in the high school library and decided to have a Homecoming Luncheon on May 22 at 12:30, at the high school. Mrs. Thigpen and six other ladies went from Bulloch County.

The meeting was on improvement of the farm and home. Three topics were discussed. Paul Crawford, Jr., assistant agricultural engineer, discussed "homestead of the farm." Dr. Williams discussed the use of native plants in landscaping the home. Miss Willie G. Dowdy's subject was "Know your materials and use the right kind for each room in making curtains and drapes. Then use a rug that is in keeping with the color in drapes."

Mrs. Duncan Flanders gave a talk on her work as state home improvement project leader.

The farm economy of the entire South will collapse if further cotton acreage cuts are permitted. Preston said, "We must be especially aggressive to prevent further acreage reductions on the smaller farmers where, in too many cases, the cotton farmer is being allocated out of existence. My bill will establish a minimum beyond which cotton acreage cannot be cut under any circumstances."

SAM NEVILLE WINS AWARD

Outstanding Grazing
And Feed Program
Gets Recognition

How Sam Neville developed the outstanding grazing and feed production program in the 27-county Southeast Georgia Agricultural Extension Service district was told this week by Bulloch County Agent Byron Dyer.

Named winter last week of the $100 district award offered by the Georgia Plant Food Educational Society, "Neville is doing an excellent job of producing feed for 412 head of cattle and around 40 hogs" according to the county agent.

Dyer was one of the three judges to visit the district winner's farm to check on the condition of his pasture and feed crops at three different times during the year. Neville first was named Bulloch county champion in 1955. His program before competing for district honors. He now will visit with five other district champs for state awards of $100, $200 and $100.

More than 500 acres of Neville's 1,000-acre farm are in cropland, and only 125 acres are in pasture. He has a permanent pasture for permanent pasture to feed his cattle and hogs. This year he will have an additional 1,071 acres of Coastal Bermuda grass for permanent pasture. Planted last year, the 107 acres were grazed lightly in 1955 in order to get rid of old plants such as crab grass, and to help the Bermuda sod to "get going." This will make a total of 232 acres of Coastal Bermuda grass on the farm this year.

Supplemental feed crops each year are 50 acres of corn and 100 of soybeans, and 30 of millet, 100 of soybeans, and 30 of millet. He also has 800 pounds of corn per acre, 80 bushels of oats, and three tons of hay is evidenced that Neville manages his land for high yields.

He credits fertilizer with a lot of the success of his feeding program. His permanent pasture of Coastal Bermuda grass, with some overseeded with crimson clover, gets 500 pounds of fertilizer and 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre each year. He also uses 800 pounds of 4-12-12 on millet and oats. In addition, he also uses top-dressing with over 100 pounds of nitrogen.

This farmer's pastures are produced from April through November. He tries to have 60 acres of supplemental pasture during the period but finds December and March the slack growth period. During this time he has 300 acres of temporary winter grazing.

A dairymen, Neville's feed production program supported over 240 cows, 120 heifers, and 30 calves during the year. He also has 30 breeding animals, around 40 feeder calves and some 40 pigs.
